I'd like to discuss this in more detail either at the Pillar office tomorrow or on tomorrow morning's call. I don't think Jeremy is planning to join, so I'd suggest discussing at the office assuming Jamie is available then.

Basically, the price of LBRY credits has been continuing to rise (currently ~$0.35) as more people realize what we've built.

I've begun exploring the possibility of a large token placement and comparing a placement versus a more tradition fund raise.

While it depends on a number of factors and assumptions, succinctly, I think we would need to be hitting valuations of $30-50mil+ for a traditional fundraise to be superior to a credit placement.

Thanks,
